

ALLIED HEALTH RURAL GENERALIST EDUCATION PROGRAM ACCREDITATION SYSTEM PROJECT

Webinar Information Session

2:00pm - 4:00pm Tuesday 6 March 2018 (Aust Eastern Daylight Time)

The Australian Healthcare and Hospitals Association (AHHA) has been engaged by Queensland Health to develop an accreditation system for rural generalist training for seven health professions. This work is part of a national strategy led by Services for Australian Rural and Remote Allied Health (SARRAH) to develop a rural generalist pathway for the allied health professions.

The project will be undertaken between January and June 2018. The outcomes will be:

1. Accreditation standards for education programs providing post-graduate training in rural generalist practice for the occupational therapy, pharmacy, nutrition & dietetics, podiatry, physiotherapy, speech pathology and radiography professions.
2. Comprehensive description and supporting resources that will facilitate the implementation of a governance body that is responsible for the standards and for administering the accreditation process. Implementation will occur in a subsequent phase of the strategy.

We would like to invite individuals interested in the project to attend a national webinar that is part of the first round of consultation sessions.

The agenda and information on the project can be accessed at <https://ahha.asn.au/allied-health-rural-generalist>. Please RSVP for the webinar by Monday 19 February by emailing Dan Holloway at dholloway@ahha.asn.au with the name and details of the attendee.
